PERIODICALS

The library has several periodicals available in homeopathy. The term periodical refers to journals, newsletters, reviews, or any other material that is published periodically throughout the year. Periodicals contain information such as review articles, original research, and news from the scientific community. Journal articles can be found by searching in one of the indexes available at our library.

The following is a list of the homeopathy journals available at Sheppard Library. Please consult a librarian for a complete list of journals, available at some other Boston area libraries.
